Sun in Taurus/Moon in Capricorn:

Nervous Nellie

You do not allow your personal doubt and worry to take over, but it is there in spite of your many strong points. This can keep you from putting your talents to good use. The things you are probably most fearful of are being poor and losing control. Your strong need for security combined with your need for material things, can easily rule your life. This is quite unnecessary because you are able to take care of everything you desire and you have the power to do that. Consequently, your worries are unfounded. You are a calm person who is kind hearted, sensual and a fun loving spirit like most Taurus individuals. However there is a strong purpose and strength in your attractive appeal. You know where you are headed and that is your purpose in life. You are very witty and can add joy to any conversation. Unfortunately way deep inside of you is a sadness that almost never comes to the surface. Leading a more spontaneous life would help you to rid yourself of your fears. What you really want is inside you and not in mutual funds, bank accounts or a house. Your varied and appreciated talents and abilities are what you should value. Becoming psychoneurotic and tyrannical can result from frustration in a Taurus-Capricorn. The most serious example of such a maladjusted individual was Adolph Hitler. Saying what you feel is not something you should fear. It is better to deal with stress or aggression honestly and openly. You can easily turn this problem around because you are capable of great organizational feats in this area and others. As a Taurus-Capricorn, you might want to concentrate more on some of your artistic abilities such as music. Your personality is also absolutely charming and that is an asset. You are able to deal with the most difficult types of people because of your very persuasive nature being such an advantage. You have good common sense coupled with stability and wisdom and this draws people to you for advice. You stand fast with your friends. You are truehearted and giving. Feelings of frustration and anger are often bottled up in you because you hold on to them rather than release them. Talking about these buried emotions can help prevent problems later, such as depressive disorder, anxiousness, paranoia and other psychological issues.
